The members of the INDEPENDENT staff, having been used to writing for evening papers, sometimes get "tomorrow" down for "today" and "today" for "yesterday." This was the cause of an unfortunate blunder in calling attention to the public view given of Mr Peacock's furniture. Readers, however, had the advertisement before them to show the proper time.

BATTALION DRILL.

Court Martial Decisions Read to the Command.

Last night the first battalion drill held under command of Colonel R. H. McLean took place on Union Square. There was a large muster of all the companies. The new commander put the battalion through various evolutions and the manual of arms. He has a clear and somewhat soft voice, which he made heard all over the parade ground. The Government band was in attendance, playing the marches in extra good style.

After the drill the battalion marched to the drill shed, inside of which it was drawn up in a hollow square to hear the judgment of the court martial in the cases of lieutenants G. W. R. King and Ira A. Burgett. Capt. J. W. Pratt of the field staff read the orders in a loud and clear tone. The following is an epitome of the charges and specifications in Lieut. King's case:

1. Wrongfully and knowingly appropriating public property in violation of the 60th article of war. The offense was specified as the taking away of two plate glass sconces from the mauka veranda of the executive building.

2. Conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, specified as appropriating $2 paid to him for W. E. Herriek, musician of Co. E., as a reward for finding a gold pin belonging to Major Geo. McLeod.

3. Misbehavior before the enemy in violation of the 42nd article of war. It was specified, first, that, on January 9, the accused having been ordered to move his command to the head of Pauoa valley, to prevent the passage of the rebels into Nuuanu Valley, he violated the order by halting and encamping at a point a mile more or less from the head of Pauoa Valley; and, secondly, that he did not post a sufficient guard about his camp.

The judgment of the court martial was that the accused was not guilty of any charge of specification and the order was promulgated that he be restored to his rank and his sword returned to him. Col. McLean promptly stopped the beginning of applause in the ranks at the conclusion of the reading.

Lieut. Burgett was charged with conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, with two specifications of having returned to his quarters on as many occasions under the influence of liquor. He was found guilty of the charge, but only as to one of the specifications. The order was that he be cashiered from the service, taking effect from May 12th.

Another court martial finding was announced in the barracks yesterday. Private E. Danbar of Co. E. was found guilty of assaulting a non-commissioned officer, Corporal Johnson, and he was fined $10 and dishonorably discharged.

Col. McLean, after the promulgation of orders relative to the court martial, briefly addressed the battalion. Speaking to the volunteers he said he would repeat what he had stated to the regulars, that he would not ask them to go any where that he would not go himself. There would likely be another battalion drill in a week. The different companies would be exercised in the use of the Hotchkiss field pieces, which would somewhat relieve the monotony of manual of arms, fours right and so forth. Still, although to an outsider it might appear that they were only going over and over the same tactics, he impressed upon them that only by continual practice could perfection be attained. It was just the same as in singing and other exercises, if practice was suspended there would be a decline of proficiency. At the close of his address the colonel gave the command to disperse.

The Pioneer Steam Candy Factory and Bakery on Hotel street is still to the front. Only firstclass goods are sold.

They Never Sleep.

The Advertiser made one of its usual mistakes yesterday when it stated that the "Never Sleeps" were reorganizing. A representative of this paper called on the Grand Never Sleeping Mogul. He was told that the old organization had outlived its usefulness and that the G. N. S. M. had concluded not to further pursue the noble object of the association. The "sleepers" will sleep, and their neighbors will be truly thankful.

Overheard.

Peter—By Jingo, this is hot weather.
Harry—Yes, why don't you do the only thing?
Peter—What is that?
Harry—Keep cool, you old idiot!
Peter—Talk is cheap. How can I do it?
Harry—Come along up of the billiard rooms at the hotel. That's the only cool place in town.
Peter—Right you are; Baylor is a daisy.

Please Explain.

The Spray is in. The Kinau is in. The Lehua is out. The Spray did not see any of the vessels. The Kinau and the Lehua met each other and a transfer took place. Please explain to the wondering taxpayers if the transfer consisted of Mr. Sanders only or if the "fish" alleged to have been caught were also handed to Commodore Beckley. A combination between the Kinau and the Lehua would simply be an illuminated, pyrotechnical Spray.

Great Furniture Sale.

A large number of people went out to Waikiki yesterday, to inspect the furniture of W. C. Peacock, which is to be sold at 10 o'clock this morning by James F. Morgan. The articles are elegant and substantial in make and material, and will likely excite some lively bidding. As the residence is on the main Waikiki drive route and the car line, there will doubtless be a large attendance. A volcano picture by Jules Tavernier, a yacht club telescope, ferns and plants, and a saddle horse will be sold besides the furniture. The library is to be sold tomorrow at Mr. Morgan's auction rooms.
